We have a new number!

Meet Our NEW TEAM MEMBERS!

In honor of Valentine's Day, we asked our new staff:
"What's the worst (or most memorable) date you've ever been on?"

Lyn Rogers, Legal Assistant

Years ago, I was taken to Hooters, and my first thought was, this is not a proper scene for a first date. I wanted to give him a chance, but there was no connection and he was really short. Not to mention he lied about his height (who does that?) We had nothing in common whatsoever! I couldn't wait until the date was over- he had food all around his mouth, and I was in pure disgust. I told him the sauce made my stomach hurt and went home, no good bye hug or anything.

*Janaye Jordan,
Creative Coordinator*

I started dating my husband in college. One night, just after we both had just turned 21 (ahem), we decided it was a brilliant idea to sneak into my apartment complex's community pool- which just so happened to be smack in the middle of the complex and very public. Didn't take long for the police to arrive. We got a slap on the wrist, but I was mortified! My husband still thinks it's funny.

Nichelle Stone, Litigation Paralegal

Several years ago, my favorite singer, Paolo Nutini, was performing at a small venue in Boston. After the (amazing) concert, I was determined to wait outside the venue to meet him. After more than an hour, it had become quite cold, and there was no sign of the singer. My husband, who was in shorts, was extremely grumpy at his rapidly dropping body temperature. He finally gruffly insisted that we stop waiting and walk to a nearby brewery. I was less than happy with him. However, while we sat at the bar, as I was sulking and irritated with my husband for forcing me away from my chance at a small glimpse, I hear my husband say, "Uh, isn't that him?" I look up and, indeed, Paolo Nutini was strolling into the almost empty brewery with a few of his crew members. He stopped and picked up my scarf that had fallen on the floor while I stared in disbelief. I was able to chat with him for a moment, share a beer recommendation, and get a picture. Needless to say, my husband was forgiven.

Tara Rooksby, Paralegal

So, I was a serial monogamist in high school and college, but if I had to pick a specific evening out, it would be junior prom with my then boyfriend. He thought it would be a smart idea to leave his car windows down the night before prom. It poured all night and that day. He had an old, beat up Ford Mustang with brown seats, and I wore a silver dress that night. The back got stained brown from sitting in his wet car.

Lauren Harrell, Paralegal

I went out to eat with a 26-year-old guy that I met online. I kept discussing how much older I was than him since I'd recently turned 28. He finally stopped and asked why I thought that. Confused, I reminded him that his profile said he was 26. He apologized, saying that was a "mistake" and he was really 37! Needless to say, I never went out with the old man again.

MY Favorite CHIL MEMORY

Take a walk down our Memory Lane as our most nostalgic staff members share their favorite moments since joining the Cooper Hurley Injury Lawyers family.

"When I started long ago, I was in a little space on Granby Street, just me, Tara, and Jim. That year, we got to move out of that building into a bigger building on Granby Street. And I still didn't get my own office, but it was a bigger office, and it was a more private office."

NICOLE, FIRM ADMINISTRATOR

"When I came back from my birthday vacation, the staff threw a surprise party for me and my birthday twin, Stacey. They had food and everything, and you know how I like to eat everything in the office. That was a great memory, and I felt really loved by staff."

CANDACE, LITIGATION PARALEGAL

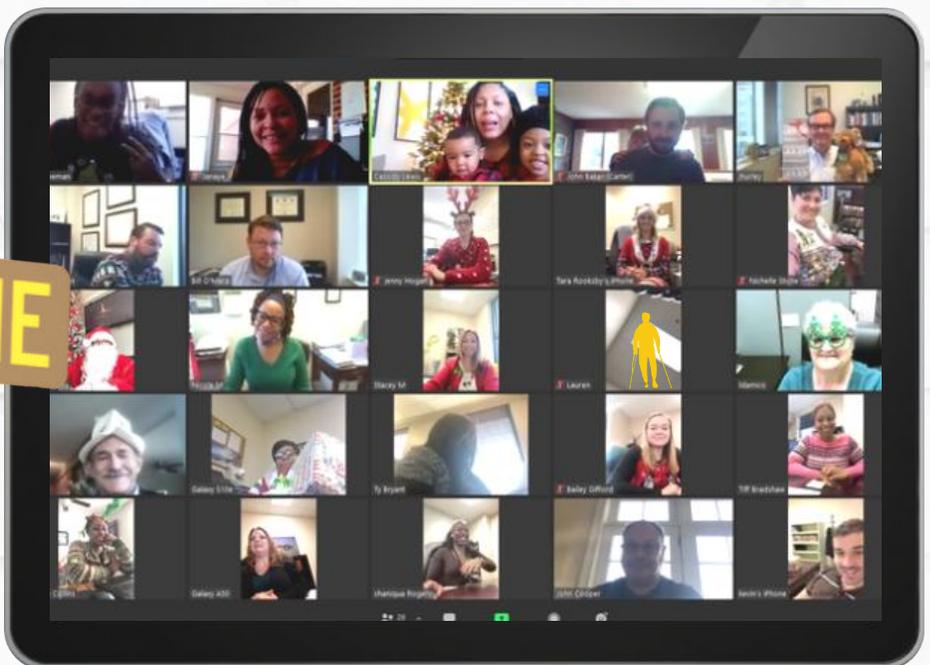

"My favorite memory is our 2019 holiday party, just because everybody was so happy and excited, and everybody dressed up for it. Everybody was so festive, and I still beat them in the festive outfit contest- haha! "

STACY, LEGAL ASSISTANT

We enjoyed sharing these memories and making new ones at our virtual holiday party in December. →

MEMORY LANE

Talcum Powder & Ovarian Cancer

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

Women who claim baby powder use caused ovarian cancer have filed thousands of lawsuits against the pharmaceutical company Johnson & Johnson. Talc is also linked to mesothelioma, an asbestos-linked cancer. In 2018, a jury awarded 22 women who claimed talc caused ovarian cancer $4.69 billion. A $117 million verdict was reached in New Jersey over the alleged link between talc and mesothelioma.

Our Virginia Beach talcum powder lawyers have been contacted by victims in these cases. We fight for the rights of those who have been harmed by big pharma and its practices of putting profit above safety. If you believe your cancer was caused by talc, please call our product liability lawyers as soon as possible at 757-333-3333.
